

	Tim in Ky CDD stage 5 is 175.5 km of lumpy terrain that ASO insists is "flat". It should be a stage for the sprinters if the DSs get their math right this time and the sprinters' teams don't play "No you chase".	06-07 15:06

Joanna in New York You might say I'm in "The Pit of Despair". ;)

06-08 06:30

BusterSci My take on the Froome to BMC rumors (details may be slightly different but the overall concept is probably accurate): In the midst of the TUE/Jiffy bag/Brailsford troubles, Froome starts wondering if the team is going to be around in 2018. He talks to a few friends in the business to see if they'd be willing to take up his contract for 2018 if Sky pulls out or the scandal explodes. Inquiries were made, but they were contingencies, not primary attempts to find a new team.

06-08 06:33

Joanna in New York Artie says "Good Morning" and "when can I get out of here?"

06-08 07:10

Joanna in New York For anyone who is interested in Artie's recovery progress from his near-dehoofing last October, I have an update. He is approximately 5-8 weeks away from being able to start his reconditioning. His fractured hoof wall is nearly completely grown out. I cannot stress what an absolute miracle this recovery has been. By all other standards, he would have not made it one day. The immediate and ongoing care he has received (and my desire to do anything necessary to ensure his recovery) have brought us to this incredible point in time. I'm choking up, just thinking about it. Someone asked me last month how I've been managing the entire ordeal, my answer was simple "denial". I think once he actually starts working again, I will need to go away for a couple days and just sob my eyes out until there are no more tears. This has been an emotionally devastating eight months, but there is an end in sight. Just had to share, amongst friends.

06-08 07:23

BusterSci I'm glad it's working out. The closest personal experience I have to compare

06-08 07:27

BusterSci Bouwman and DeGendt are now tied on KOM points.

06-08 07:28

06-08 08:50

Tim in Ky Well, they need to get over that.

06-08 08:50

Tim in Ky 63 km, 4:05.

06-08 08:52

06-08 08:53

Joanna in New York Ooooooh, ahhhhhhh!

06-08 08:56

Tim in Ky For Saturday and Sunday the live feed is scheduled for 13:30 CET.

06-08 08:56

Tim in Ky My feed froze right out of the box.

06-08 09:02

Katie of course

06-08 09:02

BusterSci Ladies and gentleman, we have racing!

06-08 09:02

Katie no commentary yet, just the sound of gears and motors - on the cars! the CARS have the motors.

06-08 09:03

mmcnally Katie - It's scheduled to be a frigid 96 here in Phoenix on Sunday. Bring your parka!

06-08 09:03

Katie brrrrrrrr

06-08 09:03

Tim in Ky Somebody woke him up.

06-08 09:04

mmcally And also Katie, I know you the area quite well with fam and all, but if you ever need anything, the McNally fam are at your service.

06-08 09:05

BusterSci 48.7km. 3:33

06-08 09:08

mmcally Buster - regarding the Froome talk. I also read BMC may be pulling out as the main sponsor and Tag Heuer as the new primary. They were all over the Tour of California. I would imagine this team would get even a larger budget.

06-08 09:08

Katie Thank you, McNally! Dad's in Laveen (down by South Mountain). On Saturday we'll do a road trip to Biosphere2 down in Oracle.

06-08 09:09

Tim in Ky BMC already has the second biggest budget after Sky.

06-08 09:10

BusterSci Well, mmcally, I'd counter that with the loss of Andy Riis's money. He founds much of BMC out of pocket and if he's getting out, it'll be hard to replace.

06-08 09:10

Tim in Ky Tommy V at the front of the chase.

06-08 09:11

BusterSci I was busy. is he in full gurn?

06-08 09:11

Tim in Ky No.

06-08 09:12

mmcally Katie - I know that area well. I will be riding South Mountain tomorrow. I go down once a week. I'm up in the NW side, around Arrowhead Lakes. But not a far drive from you. Enjoy the BioSphere. Did you see we got a new aquarium? It has been getting great reviews if you like that sort of thing.

06-08 09:12

BusterSci I made two round trips from MN to AZ to move my parents home from their place in Gold Canyon. They decided they're too old to make the trip each year so will cease the snowbird life and stay in Frostbite Falls.

06-08 09:13

BusterSci That ends 17 years of cheap winter vacations for me and Frau.

06-08 09:13

Katie Oh, yes! I've been through Gold Canyon. Dad used to own a booth at the PHX 06-08 09:13

Ren Faire. Stayed out there once to surprise him.

on the uptake than that.

for a lunch. He always enjoyed sitting on the horse saddle seats at the bar. The small things that amuse us.
Always made me smile.

BusterSci Tommy V gurning the gap down. 06-08 09:19

BusterSci We're considering what to do with our winter vacations now. We'll probably 06-08 09:22 hit Tucson now and again, but we're looking at other options as well.

Tim in Ky As strung out as the peloton is, you'd think the gap would be coming down quicker. 06-08 09:22

BusterSci I think Voeckler drives it down and the other guys in the pace line just kind of hold it steady. 06-08 09:23

Tim in Ky Break on the last Cat 4. 06-08 09:23

BusterSci At least that's the schedule central time... 06-08 09:26

mmcally Perfect time for some delicious breakfast burritos! 06-08 09:27

BusterSci And that's why it's wise to break it up a couple hours after serving. 06-08 09:28 mmcally Maybe the picnic will be sponsored by Dumoulin? Just be wary of the Cacti. 06-08 09:30 mountain bike trip in AZ, was coasting down a little sandy roller, hit a pit of sand at the bottom, went over the handlebars face-first into a buckhorn cholla.

BusterSci I bet you looked great with a beard. 06-08 09:34

Katie wow, that is a complete halt

06-08 09:40

Tim in Ky Last summer NBC Gold was start to finish every day.

06-08 09:41

BusterSci Yes, and it was P&P free for the first 2-3 hours.
