Tim in KY Limoux is in the lowlands on the Aude river just south of Carcassonne. From there the route heads south into the foothills and then west into the mountains. There is a Cat 2 that crests with 124 kilometers to go and then 40 km of mostly flat roads through the Ariège valley. With 76 km to go the route starts of the the first of three Cat 1s that follow in quick succession with barely a bit of flat road.

He's been making attempts to see if he has the pop to win a stage and when he realizes he doesn't have it on a particular day, he goes into conservatism action mode. I still think there will be a day when he decides he has it.

-  BusterSci I would still bet against it. 21-Jul-2019 08:50:12
-  Tim in KY In the department of trivia, I have never seen this before. Tuesday's stage goes through Wednesday's start town. 21-Jul-2019 08:50:59
-  BusterSci But he has shown no weakness yet. I think a big part of it will be if G shows his form of last year, or even from the Planche this year. 21-Jul-2019 08:51:19
-  Charlie in Tenn I think he fails today. Full disclosure I will continue to say this every day except the last one if he is still in yellow. 21-Jul-2019 08:51:40

 BusterSci His current position is due to numerous factors coming together. 21-Jul-2019
08:57:22
First, many favorites lost time in the TTT. Then he was allowed to get away early because he wasn't perceived as a threat. Then more favorites lost time in the crosswinds. Then G has had a couple under-peak days.

 Katie S But that's how racing works ... or at least how it is supposed to work. 21-Jul-2019
08:57:54
Some factors come together, some fall apart.

 Charlie in Tenn He has been super strong all year. We have been saying it. 21-Jul-2019
08:58:20
Can he stay strong for 3 weeks with the added pressure from the French press and fans and doping controls and all the other extra off bike crap he will have to deal with?

 BusterSci True, Katie. But over 3 weeks the coincidences should balance 21-Jul-2019 08:58:29
out.

 Charlie in Tenn agreed. I would still be happy to have him on a fantasy 21-Jul-2019 08:59:16
team though.

 Katie S I did some research on those vulture/raptors yesterdays, and I think 21-Jul-2019
09:00:00
what we just saw is a bearded vulture. From wikipedia: The bearded vulture (Gypaetus barbatus), also known as the lammergeier (or lammergeyer)[a][3][4] or ossifrage, is a bird of prey and the only member of the genus Gypaetus.

 BusterSci I'm happy to argue either side of this question. I think writing him 21-Jul-2019 off is a mistake. I think expecting him to win is a mistake.
09:00:03

 Trish in MA Good morning, all. My husband just came in and said, "Ah, I 21-Jul-2019

 BusterSci Weeding can wait until fall. 21-Jul-2019

21-Jul-2019
